

31. Wayfinding

Descriptive of a system whereby appropriate information is provided to assist a person to pass through the built environment towards a specific destination. Wayfinding includes orienting oneself, knowing one's destination, following the best route, recognizing one's destination and finding one's way back out. People who are blind or who have a vision impairment benefit from tactile information to facilitate wayfinding.